AUSTRIAN ARMY SHATTERED

LITIGATION ENDED AT LAST

Judge L. G. Hoyt's Decision in Treadwell-Williams Case.

After five years of litigation in the probate court, Judge Louis G. Hoyt has filed his decision in the trustees' account under the will of Daniel H. Treadwell. This litigation commenced five years ago, when Moses Williams, Jr., of Boston, acting as trustee, undertook to set up a claim of $3600 for himself, $5550 for Attorney Richard W. Hale of Boston, and $2766 for Attorneys Streeter and Hollis of Concord, practically claims of $12,000 against the estate coming to the late Dr. Robert O. Treadwell of this city. In Judge Hoyt's decision he allows Williams and his attorneys only $3571.44.

As a climax to this litigation, the Judge of Probate adopted an unusual procedure, by filing a twenty-page opinion, which is as follows:

In the matter of the different hearings on the first and second accounts of Moses Williams, Jr., as trustee under the will of Daniel H. Treadwell, late of Portsmouth, said hearings beginning on July 8, 1909, and continuing from time to time to Nov. 23, 1914, considering the thoroughness with which the several matters connected with the accounting have been gone into, the amount involved and the unfortunate ill-feeling shown at times by counsel toward each other, arising necessarily perhaps because the outcome depended largely upon the good faith not only of the trustee but of his counsel, the court deems it a duty to the parties interested to briefly state its views of the evidence submitted for its consideration.

There appeared as counsel for the trustee, Streeter & Hollis of Concord, and Richard W. Hale of Boston, and for the estate of Dr. Robert O. Treadwell, Page & Bartlett and Ernest L. Gupthill, all of Portsmouth.

The issues presented related to the allowance of extra compensation to the trustee for services rendered and the allowance of the several bills presented to the trustee by attorneys for fees in matters connected with the estate, excluding fees for services in this accounting or any allowances with reference thereto, which are to be included in a future accounting.

Mr. Hale had been the chief adviser of the trustee, Mr. Williams, and his counsel guided his conduct in the performance of that part of his duties. The evidence showed their relations to have been unusually intimate and each advised the other of matters occurring from time to time with reference to the administration of the trust. The first appearance of Mr. Bartlett in matters affecting the trust was as counsel for Marianna W. Treadwell, wife of Dr. Robert O. Treadwell, the latter being the last surviving of the children of Daniel H. Treadwell, whose will provided that his last surviving child should inherit the whole of his estate, but the effect of

Ready to Lay Down Arms in Galicia

Whole Regiments Are Surrendering to the Russian Forces.

(Special to The Herald)
Petrograd, Jan. 4.—The Austrian army in Galicia is becoming panic stricken, whole regiments laying down their arms and surrendering to the Russian forces. Dispatches from Lemberg state that the resistance of Austrian forces as an organized body is in complete collapse and the troops of the Dual Monarchy are offering determined resistance only at isolated points. The garrison at Przemyśl making daily attempts to smash the iron ring that the Russian forces have made around the stronghold is believed here to be composed mostly of German troops.

Under the circumstances he declined to say what would be his attitude toward accepting such a position. His term here will expire on March 1.

HUGGINS AND GLOBISH MATCHED FOR TWELVE ROUNDS

AVille, Huggins, the colored lad off the U. S. S. Leonidas, who, made such short work of Shadow Morris before the Rockingham Athletic Club three weeks ago, has accepted the challenge of Globish, of the U. S. S. Des Moines, and they will be the feature bout on Thursday evening at Freeman's hall under the auspices of the Rockingham Club.

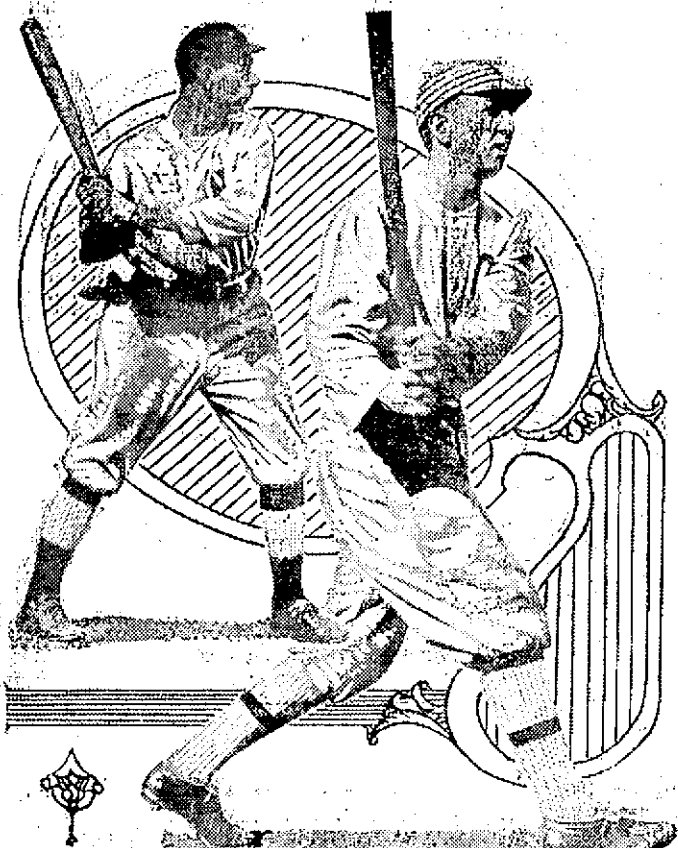

Globish is considered one of the best men at 145 pounds in the navy, and his ship mates are willing to back him to the limit, but those who saw Huggins perform with Shadow Morris are convinced that the colored lad is as clever a boy with the mitts as there is working today, and if Globish gets no decision he will know that he won it by hard work.

The bout has attracted a great interest among the sailors and they will be out in full force on Thursday evening. Both men have posted a forfeit to be at 145 pounds at the ring side.

Another match that will be fast is Jack Black of the Washington and Kid Reed of the same ship, both clever boys who are anxious to settle their superiority. The preliminary will be announced later.

Here Are the Youngsters of the Champion Billiard Players' League

LUTHER BOONE • • • EDDIE COLLINS • • •

Welker Cochran and Jake Schaefer, are the youngest of the champion billiard players' league, now playing contests in various cities over the country. Cochran is only sixteen years of age and was formerly a newsboy. He showed such promise when ten years old at his home in Iowa, that his parents moved to Chicago where he soon developed into a real star. His friends say that he is destined to wrest the championship from Willie Hoppe within a year or two. Schaefer is eighteen years old. He is the son of the man known for years as the wizard and inherited much of his talent. He did not play the game seriously until after his father's death. His father had urged him to devote himself to the game, saying that he had made the name too valuable for it to be allowed to drop out of the billiard world.

ling the building afire. From this argument a fight ensued which attracted the attention of Policeman Bosworth, with the result that Stewart was taken to the police station. After he told his story he was allowed to go, nothing more was heard of him until his arrest tonight in Concord. Shortly after his disappearance Mrs. Dean regained consciousness.

She is alleged to have told her daughter, Mrs. Leon Burns, that Stewart came home drunk and assaulted her. She said further that she attempted to wheel her chair to the telephone to call help, but that Stewart blocked her and tore the instrument from the wall. He then grabbed her by the head and dragged her about the floor, choking her and then pounded her into insensibility. Mrs. Dean was not aware that her home had burned.

Stewart first appeared in this town about 15 years ago and found employment with Albert Carr. Since that time he has worked in the woods and at odd jobs. Carr said tonight that he had never seen Stewart under the influence of liquor during the time that he worked for him.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL BUY SOME CARGOES

First Point Cleared Up Since Issue of American Note.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The British Embassy tonight issued its first statement on the shipping situation since the publication of the American note. It cleared up one point on which the United States has cleared up information. It announced that furniture and resin shipped from this country before those articles were declared contraband would be paid for when seized.

The statement said: "Furniture and resin shipped before the publication of the order placing them on a contraband list will be paid for. All copper shipped before the date of the declaration that copper was contraband has been paid for or released."

"No cargoes for Italy have been held at Gibraltar since December 1. Italian ships carrying cargoes of commodities of which export from Italy is prohibited are not interfered with unless there is clear evidence of fraudulent intentions on the part of ship-owners."

"Negotiations are proceeding in London with a view to the removal of the embargo on rubber against a pledge not to export, similar to that arranged with German rubber dyes. The negotiations have been retarded by the discovery of shipments of rubber from the United States to Europe under disguise."

Russian Japanese Precedents. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador who has been conducting much of the negotiations in connection with the American note, has not been at the state department since news of the sending of the protest was made public. It is believed that pending the deliberations of the British Government on the general subject of neutral commerce he is awaiting further instructions before continuing the negotiations.

President Wilson and his advisers are confident that Great Britain will recognize that the position of the U. S. as set forth in its note, does not differ from that which Great Britain herself has repeatedly maintained, in previous wars in which England was a neutral.

State department officials point out for example that a much more drastically phrased series of notes was sent by England to Russia when the latter was at war with Japan in 1904. Not only did England declare that foodstuffs must be shown to be for the use of an army or navy, but specific protest was entered against the doctrine that it is for the belligerents to decide that certain articles or classes of articles are, as a matter of course, to be dealt with as contraband of war, regardless of the well established rights of neutrals."

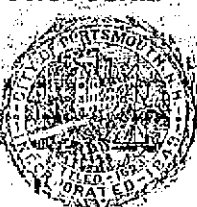

Robber Manifested as Gum

Reports of the finding of rubber manifested as gum in the cargo of the steamship Sennar are understood to have virtually halted the negotiations in progress in London with the object of obtaining a modification of the embargo against the exportation of rubber from British possessions. The vessel carried a cargo from the United States to neutral ports.

The British Government has taken the position that the rubber probably was destined for Germany, and the reported false manifesting is said to have shaken confidence in the effectiveness of proposed assurances by American merchants that no rubber would be permitted to fall into German hands if Great Britain allowed the product to come into the United States.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER

Drastic Measures To Keep From Freezing

BY HOP

MR. GARDINER ON THE ARMY AND NAVY

Washington, Jan. 3.—Under the title "Always Some Other Day" Representative A. P. Gardner of Massachusetts Saturday furnished the first of a series of articles on "The Deficiencies in Our Navy and Army and Coast Defences." In which he indulges in a broad and somewhat exaggerated criticism of military preparedness and makes serious allegations concerning both the army and navy. Mr. Gardner says the army and the navy are suffering from moribundity, which he defines as "the rule of a dead and gone hand." What is needed, he contends is a definite plan for the future.

Mr. Gardner uses picturesque language and indulges in parallel to illustrate his points, for example:

"The rule is jam tomorrow and jam yesterday—but never jam today," said the White Queen in "Through the Looking Glass." The White Queen did not happen to be talking of the American navy, but she might just as well have been doing so. What man has done man can do—such is the burden of the song of the gentlemen who believe that American genius and American freedom need no preparation for war. Is any one such a dastard as to deny that our gallant naval militia subsists, even on any pleasant afternoon, for their hunting houses for the quarter-deck and smash the British superdreadnaughts to smithereens with a fleet of converted Long Island sound steamers? Perish the thought!

Makes Comparisons

Mr. Gardner backs up his contention with comparisons.

"On July 1," he says, "France owned 1400 aeroplanes, while Uncle Sam owned 23, all of them out of date. However, we recently ordered from abroad an up-to-date French aeroplane with two Salmson motors and an up to date German aeroplane with two Mercedes motors. We were in hopes that at last we were in a fair way to establish a little brood of aircraft, but just then the European war broke out. Wicked foreigners commandeered our purchases, so here we are again just where we started.

"We have as many as 20 submarines on the whole Atlantic coast. Meanwhile, the modest proportion of 10 out of these aforementioned 20 divers were not in diving trim when Commander Stirling gave his evidence before the naval committee in December.

"Of the 30-odd fast scout cruisers which the general board of the navy tells us we need for our safety, we have built just three, but they are laid up waiting for crews with lungs strong enough to make their furnaces draw in the teeth of a blooming gale. For about 10 years we have been considering and contemplating types for scouts, but before long it is confidently expected that a satisfactory conclusion will be reached.

"Admiral Strauss tells us that every American battleship in commission today is equipped with obsolete torpedoes, but that orders have been given and plants are being enlarged, and that in two years, relief will be in sight.

"So it goes, dawdle, dawdle, dawdle, all along the line from voter to President. The fact is that the whole navy has got into a huff. It needs a

ARRESTED FOR POISONING HIS WIFE

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 2.—Following the death of his wife, who was found to have been poisoned, Oscar K. Comery, of this city, is tonight detained by the police, although no formal charge has been brought against him. It has been learned that Comery has been frequently seen with the sixteen-year old daughter of a letter carrier here and that the girl is in a delicate condition at her home.

According to the police the father of the girl when he learned of her condition informed Comery that he would have him arrested unless he took some action to protect her. Comery, it is alleged, stated that he intended to get a divorce from his wife and would marry the young girl.

"But that will be too late," the girl's father is said to have protested, "No, it won't be too late. I will take care of that," is said to have been the reply.

On November 29 Comery's wife retired in her usual health but was taken violently ill during the night and died before the next morning.

The Rev. Mr. Paulsoul, who officiated at the funeral ceremony, knew of the relations between Comery and the sixteen year old girl and some days after the burial of Mrs. Comery talked to the police. After several days of quiet investigation the body was exhumed from the grave in Pine Grove Cemetery and the internal organs sent to the State Chemist. Poison sufficient to kill several persons was found in the body.

Dr. E. J. Laroche, who attended Mrs. Comery the night of her death, said tonight that he gave acute indigestion as the cause of death, because he relied largely upon the statements of the woman's husband. When the doctor was called Mrs. Comery was unconscious and died ten minutes later. According to the doctor, Comery told him that his wife had eaten heartily of a rich food the night before and had been attacked with violent pains a few minutes before Dr. Laroche was called.

"I do not care at this time to go into any detailed discussion of the case," Dr. Laroche said tonight, "but I will say that in any similar case where a physician is called at the last moment, obliged to base his judgment and his course of procedure upon the information furnished him by the members of the household, it is extremely difficult to make a diagnosis that will be accurate in detail.

"The symptoms shown by Mrs. Comery at the late hour of which I saw her, were those of acute indigestion, but I do not say that at least many of the same ones might not have been present, had she been suffering from a variety of poisons that might have been administered by herself or by anybody else."

The police have refused to permit Comery to issue a statement, and have ordered all identified with the case to refrain from discussing it.

FOUR AFTERNOON PAPERS RAISE PRICE TO 2 CENTS

San Francisco, Jan. 3.—After more than a year of experimentation, two of the afternoon papers published here advanced their price Saturday from 1 to 2 cents a copy. Their managers state that while war news has increased circulation, business conditions have not permitted an advance in the advertising rates, and as the price of white paper has gone up this increase has been a loss and not a gain.

The Oakland Tribune and the Oakland Enquirer also announced an increase from 1 to 2 cents a copy. With the exception of the San Francisco News, all afternoon papers in Oakland and San Francisco will sell for 2 cents.

WORK ON PACIFIC COAST BATTERIES BEGINS.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 3.—Construction of the placements for coast defense batteries at Fort Arthur, on Point Miral, Los Angeles Harbor, was begun today by the United States government. Nearly $200,000 is to be spent on the batteries, while the entire fort is expected to cost about $3,000,000.

The schools reopen for the winter term today, after the two weeks vacation. There is no change in the teaching staff in any of the schools.

further provision of law to the effect that the Secretary of the Navy should be given authority, not only to re-instate those mentioned in the Witherspoon resolution where they are found to be qualified physically, mentally and otherwise to continue in the service, but also all other officers who have been removed by the "plucking board" and are found to be qualified as above mentioned.

"The committee on rules, not being an executive committee, does not feel authorized in this case to propose legislation remedying these evils and wrongs that have been done officers in the navy. They are inclined to the opinion that the Committee on Naval Affairs, having jurisdiction of the subject matter might well take action in the direction above indicated. If the Committee on Naval Affairs sees fit to report a bill repealing the so-called plucking board law, and give the Secretary of the Navy authority to reinstate the officers named in the Witherspoon resolution as well as all worthy officers who have been removed by the board the committee on rules would be inclined to report a special rule giving consideration to such a bill and general legislation along these lines. This would bring relief in all those cases in which it was deserved."

BILL TO ABOLISH PLUCKING BOARD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—Abolition of the plucking board was recommended Saturday by the House Committee on Rules, which, curiously enough, has no jurisdiction over that subject. The committee was asked by the House Committee on Naval Affairs to report a rule making in order certain bills reported out by the Naval Committee and restoring "plucked" officers. The rule was asked for by the Naval Committee, which was unable to get the bills before the House on account of parliamentary difficulties.

Representative Samuel A. Witherspoon, of Mississippi, a member of the Naval Committee, has been most active in pressing for the passage of these measures.

OFFERS BILL TO INCREASE COAST ARTILLERY BY 8000

Washington, Jan. 3.—A bill to increase the coast artillery by 8000 enlisted men, a measure identical with one by Chairman Chamberlain of the Senate military committee, was introduced Saturday by Representative Gardner, who explained to the House it was in line with the recent statement of Brig. Gen. Weaver, chief of the coast artillery, that the service was 165 officers and 10,388 men short.

Make Your Own Cough Medicine

The difference in buying one of the most efficient, latest and up-to-date cough and cold remedies (which can be made at home), and buying the old, ordinary, ready-made kind, is that with the new one you get all pure medicine instead of having a large proportion of sugar and water, besides paying for bottles, corks and labels, and it usually requires 2 to 3 bottles of the old-fashioned, ready-made remedies to break up a cough or cold, while 2 ounces (50c worth) of Schiffmann's new Concentrated Expectant, which is so strongly concentrated that 2 ounces, when mixed at home with simply one pint of granulated sugar and one-half pint of water, make a full pint (16 ounces) of excellent cough remedy, and will be sufficient to probably last the whole family the entire winter. It positively cures the whooping cough, croup, bronchitis, and other ailments, and is so pleasant that children like to take it. Arrangements have been made with drug stores named below to refund the money to any person who finds it does not give perfect satisfaction, or if it is not found the very best remedy ever used for coughs, colds, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and influenza. You will be the sole judge, and under the positive guarantee by these druggists, absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. For sale here by Tilton Drug Co.

VOLUNTEERS OBJECT

London, Jan. 3.—There is a perfect furor for organizing military corps throughout Great Britain, and the war office is getting broadside criticism on account of the way it is treating these well-intentioned efforts. No less than one thousand unrecognized volunteer organizations are existing.

The war office has just announced that it will grant recognition only to volunteer military organizations, which becomes affiliated with the Central Association Volunteer Training Corps, of which Lord Desborough's corps is the only one which will now or any other time receive official recognition.

I expect that most of the volunteer organizations will follow the instructions of the war office, but there is much hard feeling at the present.

It is argued that the home defense forces should form part of the military forces of the Crown, so as to be recognized combatants, whereas the rules framed by the war department seem to keep them outside the pale. The Emotionalism Should Cease.

There is truth in the old saying that where there is much smoke there is sure to be some fire, and so it is reasonable to believe that there is some basis for the cry of non-employment that is heard in many parts of the country, particularly in the big cities. But there is much to indicate that the situation is not nearly so bad as represented by emotionalists and paid agents who go about with professional tears in their eyes and manufactured quavers in their voices, conveying the idea that hundreds and thousands are in danger of starvation through no fault of their own.

This paper has before dared to intimate that the cry of non-employment was being overworked, and has pointed to the fact that a great many men who complain that they can get nothing to do are very particular about what they do. They do not hesitate to accept aid from the city and the relief associations on the ground that they are unable to find employment, but many of these men will fluke completely when offered work that is not exactly to their liking.

Every man who has watched conditions in his own city knows this to be true. It is not true of all cases. There are men who when they say they want work mean it, and prove their sincerity by taking the first job that comes to hand without putting those who offer employment through the "third degree" concerning the nature of the work, the hours and the wages.

The fact that there has been a good deal of buncombe about non-employment and its consequent hardships in a certain eastern city has been made very plain in the last few days. To relieve the situation alleged to exist public work was started and a call was extended to the unemployed to come forth and go to work. On one morning 50 men reported and 25 reached the job, the others having fallen out by the way. On another morning 25 showed up and started for the work, but only eight got there, and when a slight sprinkle came up a few hours later they quit with a suddenness that was emphatic. In a few days the city was obliged to call on its regular men to go on with work that would not have been undertaken at this time except for the purpose of furnishing employment to men in need.

And it is to be presumed that the city referred to is not alone in this experience. It is proper that all reasonable effort should be made to assist those who are ready to help themselves, but it is time to drop hysteria and emotionalism, look the facts in the face and deal with things as they are.

We are frequently reminded, especially in discussion of the foreign war, that good can come out of evil, and perhaps it was on this theory that the New York Bowery mission singer stole whatever he could get his hands on and gave the proceeds to the poor. His last haul was $1,400 worth of jewelry from an apartment house, and he admitted that he had cleaned up about $4,000 in all, with which he had carried happiness to many struggling souls.

In Maine recently several storehouses were burned and 65,000 bushels of potatoes were consumed. A sort of potato barbecue, as it were. The fires are believed to have been caused by overheated stoves started to keep the potatoes from freezing during the cold spell. The supply of potatoes is such that the public will not feel the loss, but it is a serious one for the owners.

It is reported from Washington that a bill will soon be introduced into the Senate calling for a constitutional amendment taking from the president the right to proclaim aggressive warfare and placing it in the hands of the voters. It is probable this matter will never reach the voters, but if it does, and they want peace, they will down it with a sickening thud.

Some American shippers have been concealing contraband articles in non-contraband goods, and the discovery is making trouble. Such acts should be severely punished. This country does not want its peaceful relations with the rest of the world endangered by "enterprise."

which was made somewhat uncertain by a codicil which provided that in consideration of the kindness and attention paid him by his daughter-in-law, Marianna W. Treadwell, wife of Robert O. Treadwell, he directed that during the time she should remain the wife or widow of Robert she should receive out of Robert's share of the income of his estate, if she desired it, a portion not exceeding one-third, but he provided that Marianna should never compel his trustees by legal process or otherwise to account to her for any sums of money or delings of theirs. Dr. Treadwell was living apart from his wife. She at Arlington and he at Portsmouth, but their relations were not altogether friendly.

At the beginning Mr. Hale was acting as personal counsel for Dr. Treadwell, as was also Mr. Thomas H. Simes of Portsmouth. Dr. Treadwell became the last surviving child upon the death of his brother George, Feb. 26, 1908. It was not long after the appearance of Mr. Bartlett in the case in June, 1908, that his relations with Mr. Hale, or Mr. Hale's relations with him, became unfriendly and Mr. Hale sought to undermine Mr. Bartlett's influence with his client, Marianna, in the hope that she might place her interests in the hands of Mr. Williams and in the service of this purpose and to prevent the Doctor from employing Mr. Bartlett for his counsel Mr. Hale made use of Mr. Simes, the Doctor's Portsmouth attorney, who readily responded to Mr. Hale's overtures to help him. Between Mr. Hale and Mr. Simes there passed a considerable correspondence extending from July, 1906, to February, 1907, all of which appeared in evidence.

The sarcastic bitterness shown by Mr. Hale toward Mr. Bartlett in this correspondence seemed to be so interwoven in the warp and woof of Mr. Hale's mind as to conceal from him his duty to his clients. Without the disguise of even palliative sophism, even to his own mind, Mr. Hale wrote to Mr. Simes in such a way as no veteran diplomatist would scarcely write in cipher for the direction of his most confidential spy, to see if Mr. Simes could not devise some way to so poison the mind of Mrs. Treadwell that she would discharge Mr. Bartlett and go to Mr. Williams for relief from the web they claimed was being woven about her.

From the time Mr. Bartlett wrote to the Doctor in behalf of Mrs. Treadwell for a greater allowance in June, 1906, to the day he appeared on the record as counsel for both the Doctor and Mrs. Treadwell on Jan. 8, 1907, asking for a termination of the trust and to have the property turned over to the Doctor, Mr. Hale worked incessantly and relentlessly with Mr. Simes to prejudice both the Doctor and his wife against Page & Bartlett. Of this these letters present much evidence and Mr. Hale and Mr. Simes devised several schemes of getting at it. Nov. 18, 1906, Mr. Hale suggested that he should write Mrs. Treadwell that Mr. Bartlett had been false to her interests and had endeavored to sell out to the Doctor, but said he feared this might increase Mr. Bartlett's efforts to get the Doctor for a client. In answer to this plan Mr. Simes suggested another for Mr. Williams to adopt to break Mrs. Treadwell's confidence in Mr. Bartlett, remaining that if they could get Mrs. Treadwell away from Mr. Bartlett without a fuss they would do well, and the next day Mr. Hale wrote that he considered Simes' plan better than his own. Mr. Hale had in mind working secretly on Mrs. Treadwell through some of her friends and he mentioned Miss Virginia Collamore as one of her good friends, if not her best, and said he was trying to get in touch with her. Mr. Hale's correspondence seemed to indicate that he thought there would be strategic advantage in having a secret agent at Arlington as well as at Portsmouth. It is not apparent what ultimate purpose all this misguided effort was intended to accomplish unless to keep the trust alive and take on again the matter of the lease to the State Street Trust Company, for on November 27, 1906, Mr. Hale wrote Mr. Simes that the Trust Company would not take any lease unless Mrs. Treadwell was in some way a party to it and that so long as Mrs. Treadwell was controlled by Page & Bartlett there was no encouragement in going to work upon such a negotiation as their chances of success depended upon their being able to deliver the goods without litigation, and he impressed upon Mr. Simes the fact that such opportunities did not come every day.

Mr. Hale was being kept informed as to the home surroundings of the Doctor to see that he kept free from Page & Bartlett by Mr. Simes, who, upon one occasion while making a call, unknown to the Doctor, took letters from his house written to the Doctor by Page & Bartlett and sent them to Mr. Hale to be returned so they could be replaced without the Doctor's knowledge. He was having reported to him the many conversations Mr. Simes was having with the Doctor and learned in this way that the Doctor was becoming dissatisfied with him as his counsel. Mr. Simes telling of his repeated advice to the Doctor to elude Mr. Hale. As early as July, 1906, Mr. Simes wrote of a mutual friend who had advised the Doctor about the employing counsel and that his friend had overlooked Mr. Simes' merits for being "a great fighter." CURRENT OPINION

Truths of the Bible Upheld by Discoveries of Science

There has been no scientific discovery of the last twenty years that does not uphold the truths of the Bible and that is not found better stated in the Bible. Man for the last twenty years has been worshipping in the language of science. The cellular structure of man means infinite love. There is no such thing as an atheistic man, even as there is no such thing as an atheistic rose. The sun thirst of the rose keeps it true, and the God thirst of man makes him know the truth. As comes the sunshine to reveal the sun to the roses, so comes Christ to reveal God to man.

The church of today must be prepared for what will come at the close of this terrible war.

The church must get ready, for the fact is that with the overthrow of materialism, which has come about in the last twenty years, our danger is on the direction of anti-realism, of too much idealism, of an utter pantheism.

Only the other day we wondered if we had a soul. Today we wonder if we have a body. The soul has come in at the front door.—By Rev. Frank Gangsulus of the Armour Institute, Chicago.

or the demerits of "Page & Bartlett," and later made the suggestion that they might influence the Doctor through a certain person who was supposed to have great influence with him.

The latter part of July, 1906, Mr. Simes apparently thought matters were getting hopeless and he sent out a call for help, but Mr. Hale wrote him he did not think it wise to go to Portsmouth for if Page & Bartlett were temporarily to get possession he thought it would weaken him to seem to have fought against it, for while today he might deter the Doctor, in the long run he could deter him as well otherwise, and he could not keep himself "on tap for trips to Portsmouth," but if the Doctor should make an attack upon Mr. Williams, the trustee, they could meet it by requesting the appointment of a guardian. Mr. Simes drew up a codicil to the Doctor's will devoted to an attack upon Page & Bartlett, which the Doctor signed, a copy of which Mr. Simes sent to Mr. Hale. The latter expressed admiration for this stroke of policy on the part of Mr. Simes saying it was admirably done and likely to accomplish its purpose, which caused Mr. Simes to express his gratitude that his "moves in the game" had met with Mr. Hale's approval, assuring him, however, that he was kept busy in Portsmouth "by the enemy."

In November, 1906, Mr. Simes wrote that the Doctor was getting uneasy that he could not get money enough to meet his obligations and a month later he complained that the Doctor told him but little so he had to work through a confidential agent, and in January, 1907, he found the Doctor so dissatisfied that he wrote Mr. Hale to let the Doctor know he was communicating with him, for his usefulness to Mr. Hale would thus be at an end. On Jan. 12, 1907, when he learned from Mr. Hale that a petition to end the trust had been filed in court by Page & Bartlett as counsel for both Doctor and Mrs. Treadwell (which counsel for the trustee claimed was their first notice that the Doctor was dissatisfied) Mr. Simes wrote to Mr. Hale that he hoped he would show Mr. Bartlett up and advised that the hard-core trustee made the action bear on Doctor and Mrs. Treadwell the less they would enjoy it, suggesting that since "war exists" he could not "play the part of spy and also that of an attorney." In reply Mr. Hale wrote that Mr. Simes would be doing the Doctor a great service by "assailing" to see that the Doctor's affairs remained in the hands of Mr. Williams.

Shortly after the death of George the Doctor had an interview with Mr. Hale and Mr. Williams and he inquired whether the estate had been vested in him and they told him it had, and he asked if that was not the end of the trust and he was told there was a doubt about it and they could not tell and no one could without going to the court, and he must realize that would cost money and as Mr. Williams was handling the estate so well there did not seem to be need of that, so Mr. Williams could go along as a kind of agent of the Doctor. This explanation seemed to satisfy the Doctor for the time being but it was not long before he became uneasy in the thought of having a trustee without a trust, and he began to talk to Mr. Simes about employing other counsel whereupon he took him to Boston to see Hale and Williams about it and during the conference (June 30, 1906) Mr. Simes talked for the Doctor and the others talked for themselves, because as they testified the Doctor could not keep his mind concentrated long on a subject. Mr. Hale talked earnestly of the importance of his keeping away from Page & Bartlett for they were his enemies and could not be trusted. The Doctor said he could sell his real estate and get $200,000 in cash for it, so he could have money to use in his lifetime. Mr. Hale told him that the cash offer was from people whom he knew to be scoundrels, so the Doctor said he would have nothing more to do with them and Mr. Williams showed impatience that the Doctor could not see that their proposed rental of $15,000 a year for the very few years he had to live and for ninety years after his death was worth more to him than $200,000 while he was living. This seemed to be such a complicated problem that the Doctor apparently forgot what he was there for, and the interview ended with the renewal by Mr. Hale of his previously expressed sympathy and admiration for Mr. Hale, trustee's position was that he didn't had of overlooked Mr. Simes' merits for being "a great fighter." This feeble old man went to this interview to learn why it was the trust still continued. The information was not given to him but he was so satisfied that as soon as he got home he wrote thanking Mr. Williams for his politeness and wrote, "Also, pray, thank Mr. Hale, the were getting hopeless and he sent out a call for help, but Mr. Hale wrote him he did not think it wise to go to Portsmouth for if Page & Bartlett were temporarily to get possession he thought it would weaken him to seem to have fought against it, for while today he might deter the Doctor, in the long run he could deter him as well otherwise, and he could not keep himself "on tap for trips to Portsmouth," but if the Doctor should make an attack upon Mr. Williams, the trustee, they could meet it by requesting the appointment of a guardian. Mr. Simes drew up a codicil to the Doctor's will devoted to an attack upon Page & Bartlett, which the Doctor signed, a copy of which Mr. Simes sent to Mr. Hale. The latter expressed admiration for this stroke of policy on the part of Mr. Simes saying it was admirably done and likely to accomplish its purpose, which caused Mr. Simes to express his gratitude that his "moves in the game" had met with Mr. Hale's approval, assuring him, however, that he was kept busy in Portsmouth "by the enemy."

The sense of satisfaction which the Doctor seemed to experience from this interview did not last a week and in just a month from the day of that conference Mr. Simes wrote directly to the trustee of the Doctor's dissatisfaction and he told him plainly of the difficulty he had of keeping in with the Doctor and of keeping the Doctor in with Hale and Williams for Mr. Bartlett was poisoning the mind of the Doctor against them by telling him he had looked up the law, and there was no trust and that Hale and Williams were keeping him out of what belonged to him. In that letter he wrote to the trustee that it was difficult in explaining the trust business to the Doctor for he did not seem to see it in the way Mr. Simes explained it to him for he had "explained the trust three times within as many days and each time with less success; so finding the shoe pinches in part because he requires money to pay off his repair bills I told him not to worry but to bring his bills to me, and I would do my best to help him meet them." This letter of July 30, 1906, to the trustee from the person who had acted throughout as his agent in keeping the Doctor inactive must be considered as some evidence that this trust was not continuing along at the request of the Doctor. If the trustee had honestly wished to fulfill the condition of his bond "to faithfully execute the trust according to the true intent of his testator and at the expiration of his trust to adjust and settle his account with the judge, and pay and deliver over all balances, money and property with which he has been entrusted" it is difficult to understand his conduct in continuing to hold this property. He knew of the Doctor's changing attitude toward him, and toward his counsel that the dissatisfaction with which he received the explanations of Mr. Simes that he trust still continued. He was informed that Mr. Bartlett was telling the Doctor that there was no trust and that there was no reason for the trustee's holding this property and when he turned to his own attorney to learn whether Mr. Bartlett's advice was sound he received for a reply, "I do not know."

The trustee needed but to seek the advice of the court in the matter and this old man would have been relieved of his troubles and would have had no need for the services of Mr. Bartlett or any other lawyer. The trustee never filed a bill for instructions until compelled to do so by a suit in equity filed on February 1, 1907, by Page & Bartlett acting as attorneys for both Doctor and his wife. Instead of being open and frank the whole conduct of the trustee and Mr. Hale toward the Doctor was one of obscurity and so of deceit because it kept him in ignorance of the fact that the aim of Williams, Hale and Simes was to keep alive this trust, and it cannot escape notice that with the great array of legal talent employed by the trustee in this case no evidence was offered to show that Page & Bartlett, or either of them, ever took advantage of either Doctor Treadwell or his wife. Out of all the condemnation these lawyers heaped upon Page & Bartlett, sitting down, as they testified, and working over the draft of their bill, paragraph by paragraph, and interrogatory by interrogatory, carefully considering the question whether they had evidence of each allegation they made, they introduced no evidence affecting the honesty of the service which Page & Bartlett rendered these two old people. When the trustee attempted to perfect a sale of the Mugridge property he met with the opposition of Marianna, and Mr. Hale testified that July 1, 1906, he told Mr. Kelley, who represented the purchaser, that Mr. Bartlett was raising the question whether there was a trust or not and Mr. Hale told Mr. Kelley that the trustee's position was that he didn't know. Two weeks after this Page &

Bartlett wrote Mr. Hale that the Doctor did not understand there was a trust and that there was much talk that Hale and Williams were holding this trust over him. At this time five months had elapsed since the death of the last child except the Doctor and the trustee during that period had been many times reminded that the claim was being made that he clause of the Treadwell will which provided that his last surviving child should inherit his whole estate of every kind absolutely and in fee simple meant what it read, and yet the trustee made no move to seek the advice of a court of competent jurisdiction to instruct him as to his duty to turn over this estate to the person designated in the will as the one entitled to receive it. On the contrary, he decided to pursue a course of inaction and from that time on to co-operate with Mr. Simes to keep the Doctor in touch with Mr. Hale as the guiding star of the firmament, as the evidence shows he surely was, and to keep the Doctor away from Page & Bartlett, who had threatened in a letter to Mr. Hale to bring suit to take this property out of the hands of the trustee, on the ground that the trust had terminated.

This policy of inaction was pursued for a further period of six months during which time Mr. Hale was making desperate efforts through Mr. Simes, by secret agents and otherwise, to get Page & Bartlett's client, Marianna, away from them and to keep the Doctor out of the hands of the people they claimed to be his enemies, Page & Bartlett, and for no reason more apparent than to prevent them from appearing for the Doctor and putting an end to this trust. The trustee could have saved his counsel and Mr. Simes all their anxious tribulations by simply performing his duty in asking the direction of the court whether he should hold or turn over this property. All the days of labor which counsel said they were compelled to perform to answer the allegations of bad faith; the many weeks spent in hearing the evidence and arguments on this account and the large expense for stenographic work would thus have been saved, as well as the wounding of the trustee's sense of honor by having the sincerity of his motives called in question.

And the court can come to no other conclusion than that he was guilty of bad faith.

That New Fire Station

The mayor in his inaugural starts the ball rolling for the much needed fire station and it is hoped that it will come this year regardless of article from a local correspondent for a Sunday paper who enjoys a dig at the fire department. He says there is considerable opposition among the council and the other citizens to the mayor's idea, and while it is quite likely that the proposed permanent paying of Middle street will become a reality this year, it is very doubtful if any change will be made in the fire station. This should not figure against the most needed improvement in the city.

A new station has been recommended for the past 25 years. The present building is inconvenient, unsanitary, in need of expensive repairs, and is impossible to heat in zero weather. A gas stove has to be kept burning under the steamer to keep the water in the boiler and pumps from freezing and blankets have to be kept on the horses.

If there are any opposed to the building of a new station, or doing any work, let them visit the old shack some cold, windy day and breathe a little of the foul air.

TUBERCULOSIS CAMPAIGN COSTS MILLIONS

More than $20,500,000 was spent last year in the campaign against tuberculosis in the United States. Of this sum, 66.8 per cent. was derived from public funds, either federal, state, county or municipal, and the remainder was contributed by private philanthropy. These are some of the interesting figures contained in the annual statistical statement of The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, made public today. The statement is based largely on actual reports received from anti-tuberculosis agencies throughout the country, but where reports are not available, the figures have been estimated.

Institutional care and treatment of consumptives in hospitals and sanatoria makes up the largest share of the total expenditures. More than $17,000,000 was spent for this purpose, with an additional $285,000 for special treatment of tuberculous insane and prisoners. These figures include not only the cost of maintenance, but in some instances the cost of construction of institutions. Anti-tuberculosis associations spent the next largest sum, amounting to a little over $900,000. Care of patients in dispensaries and by visiting nurses cost almost as much, approximately $850,000. The growth of the open air school movement is shown in the fact that last year more than $300,000 was spent for this purpose, as against $10,000 expended five years ago. State and city boards of health spent $200,000 directly on tuberculosis work.

In the last five years, the percentage of money spent from public funds has steadily increased from 63 per cent. in 1909 to 66.8 per cent. in 1913, and 66.8 per cent. last year. The National Association considers this increase significant, since it indicates a shifting of the burden of institutional care of the consumptive from the private purse to the general public purse where it rightly belongs.

New York State spent more money last year in the tuberculosis campaign than any other two States in the Union, due largely to the increased and rapidly developing movement for city and county care of the tuberculous. Pennsylvania, which has occupied second place for the past four years, was superseded last year by Illinois, with Massachusetts in fourth place and Colorado in fifth place. The following table shows the estimated public and private expenditures in each of the five leading states:

	State	Public	Private
New York	$3,236,859	$1,728,360
Illinois	1,789,428	530,100
Pennsylvania	1,637,623	473,913
Massachusetts	1,231,600	201,767
Colorado	100,500	737,793

There were seven people baptized, and eleven were received into the membership of the church, and more will unite in the immediate future. The reports given by the various societies of the church, at the vesper service were found to be most encouraging, as they proved that each society was in a flourishing condition. The report from the Sunday school showed that it had the best spiritual and financial enrollment and attendance for many years. The total enrollment is over 350. The 50-worth League reported over 100 members, and that all were in working order. The report from the Ladies Aid was to the effect that it had an income during the year of over $475, and that the various calls made by the society have been responded to very freely and heartily, and during the entire year, the greatest harmony has existed among all those interested.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

When cross, feverish and sick give "California Syrup of Figs."

"Children love this 'fruit laxative' and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely."

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups, plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

The times I held him close and dried his tears, And answered clever questions were so few, I loved him so my heart was full of fears, But when he left or how, I never knew.

afternoon after a short illness. The funeral will be held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mr. Correll, 12 Stark avenue, Dover, on Wednesday morning.

James W. Bartlett

James W. Bartlett, one of the oldest residents of Eliot, died last night, aged 86 years, at the homestead which has been in the family's possession since 1713. He was born on the homestead July 1, 1828, a son of Nathan and Melusie (Emery) Bartlett, and always lived there. He was many years a member of the Methodist church.

He is survived by a wife, a daughter, Mrs. J. B. Griffin of Newmarket, N. H., and two sons, John and Fred Bartlett, both of Boston.

THE MOTHER'S LOSSES

I had a tiny babe the other day,— A sweet pink rosebud full of wondrous charms;

I held him tightly lest he fly away, So like an angel was he in my arms. I scarce had kissed his eyes and cheeks and lips,

And creases in his ankle, neck and wrist, His cunning toes and rosy finger tips, Than he was gone—so still he was not missed.

GERMANS AND ALLIES IN HAND TO HAND CONFLICT

Allies Gain but Straight Headway and Only After Heavy Loss of Life—
Germans and Allies Both Make Claims—Russians Have Invaded
Hungary With Four Armies

London, Jan. 3.—Upper Alsace inces engaged. The fighting which is sporadic in the other quarters in the west, has brought about no material change in the situation. The artillery is playing the biggest part, although at points there has been close range fighting in which a few yards have been gained or lost.

In the Polish theatre there have been engagements on the rivers Bzura and Rawka, but seemingly the Germans are no nearer Warsaw than they were a week ago. They have, however, commenced offensive operations in the direction of Kieles, one of the larger towns of Southern Poland, which doubtless has for its object the holding up of the Russian advance.

through Gallea on Cracow. Another attempt on the part of the Germans to advance from Mawa to divert the Russian thrust to outflank their centre by crossing the lower Vistula, northwest of Warsaw has been checked by the Russians.

According to Petrograd reports the Russians continue to sweep the Austrians westward along the southern Galician railway toward Gdysow and Neu Sandee and out of the northern foothills of the Carpathians, and are credited with having organized a new campaign against Hungary, advancing in four columns across the mountains. This it is said, will not be like previous raids, but will be a regular invasion.

Further east the Russians are marching across Bukowina not far north of the Romanian frontier, toward Transylvania. It is considered likely that Romanian action will be hastened by this.

On the Caucasian front, where Field Marshal von der Goltz is to take command, the Turks have assumed the offensive and crossed the Russian frontier at three points. Heavy fighting is now reported to be in progress.

Today, by request of King George, will be observed as a day of intercession, and special prayers for the success of the Allies' arms and for the soldiers of all the nations engaged in the war will be offered in every church and chapel of all creeds and religions in the kingdom.

Another fifty men from the British battleship Formidable, lost in the English Channel on Friday, have reached safety after riding out a fierce gale for upwards of twenty hours in an open cutter, making a total of 201 survivors out of a crew of 730.

The latest survivors landed at Lyme-Regis, on the Dorset coast, late on Friday night. All were in a state of exhaustion after their terrible experience. They declare there is little hope of any further survivors, as the tremendous seas which were running at the time would make it impossible for men to live long enough to be picked up by passing vessels, while many of those clinging to the wreckage undoubtedly were killed when the second explosion occurred.

The Admiralty has issued no statement in reference to the cause of the disaster or where it occurred.

Paris, Jan. 3.—Soup and boiled beef distribution has been undertaken on a large scale in Paris to meet the winter's demand. Pieces of beef, which through wholesome and nutritious are not advantageous for the feeding of the soldiers, on account of weight and cumbersome, are sent by the army butchers to the soup kitchens for the poor, to be sold at the lowest price that nets actual cost. The soup was sold first at six sous a litre (six cents a quart) and the same price for a half pound of beef, but the soup has now been reduced to two sous a litre and the beef to four sous a pound.

From 10 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon, a long line composed mostly of women and children with their pots, pails and jugs, await their turn to be served at the stock yards. The soup kitchens have extended all over Paris, and now more than 10,000 persons, representing as many families, are served daily at an optional cost of two cents.

So many come that the enterprise has turned out to be a profitable venture, and the profits, to which the city of Paris added a sum of $1000 which was generally reserved as an indemnity for summer holiday vacation of the stockyard employees, are to be used to purchase warm clothing for soldiers.

This has taken the idea of charity out of the enterprise, and made those who bring their pots and their four sous containers in an enterprise for the comfort of the men in the trenches. Up to the present time three poor people have sent more than a thousand full sets of warm clothing to the soldiers, besides the same number of pipes and a considerable quantity of tobacco.

DR. CROSSMAN REFUSES OFFER

Writes Board of Control Regarding State Hospital Position.

Another bomb has been dropped in the camp of the board of control regarding the state hospital controversy as it has been learned tonight from authentic sources that Dr. Edgar O. Crossman, the majority appointee, will not accept the position as superintendent and the informant declares that a letter declining the proffered contract has been sent to the board.

This sudden change in affairs disorganizes the plans of both the minority and majority members of the board and puts the matter back on the same status as it was when Dr. Doherty was placed as acting head of the institution.

While Dr. Crossman has made no direct statement for publication giving the reason for his declining the position, it is understood that it is based on the divided attitude toward him by the members of the board and that unless the vote appointing him was unanimous, he would not consider the proposition.

The declaration puts a quietus on the injunction proceeding instituted by William J. Allen and Benjamin W. Conch forbidding the majority members, Governor Felker, Councilor McFarlane and Purchasing Agent Fowler to issuing a contract for one year and for which hearing before Judge Kirtland had been assigned January 3.

Serve Notice on Felker

The notices of the order of Judge Kirtland for next Saturday's hearing have been served on Governor Felker, Purchasing Agent Fowler, and Dr. Crossman. The notice to Councilor McFarlane, if it has not been served already, will be tomorrow, at his home in Lisbon, by a Grafton county sheriff. Purchasing Agent Fowler's was served last Friday night, the same day the bill was filed and Governor Felker was met by Deputy Sheriff Wooster yesterday during his visit to Grafton. A Grafton county sheriff did the same for Dr. Crossman at Lisbon.

Many rumors are afloat regarding the probable action of the board when the letter from Dr. Crossman is received.

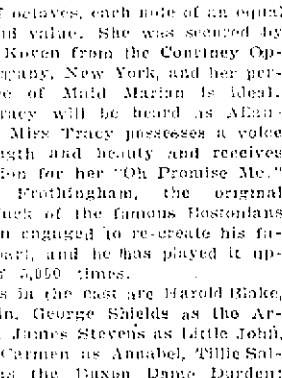

Many Democratic leaders are of the opinion that the board will take advantage of the two remaining days and will make another appointment. In answer to this statement, it is understood that the authority members of the board stand ready to seek injunction proceedings on the same grounds as the original against Dr. Crossman, after such appointment as a legally recognized applicant.

Cora Tracy with The deKoven Opera Company in "ROBIN HOOD"

The de Koven Opera Company is responsible for the revival of "Robin Hood" which will be heard at the Portsmouth Theatre Wednesday evening, January 6. This organization has been formed for the purpose of reviving interest in the masterpieces of the past opera stage. The first work selected for this purpose was the little classic that Reginald de Koven composed over twenty years ago, and which still maintains its freshness despite the flight of time. In fact it is safe to credit that generations yet unborn will enjoy the score and book of "Robin Hood" in the years to come. Originally written for the Bostonians and produced by them only because of the lack of other available material, this work of Reginald de Koven's found an immediate success and has been performed more than 2,000 times. It is safe to say, however, that no revival of "Robin Hood" has ever attained the dignity of the present one. For the first time the best singers from the grand opera stage were engaged. The keynote of the entire production has been artistic simplicity without over elaboration. The scenes are faithful reproductions of Old England when Robin and his merry men roamed through Sherwood Forest. The costumes are in keeping with the period of the opera. In the list of singers who will be heard in "Robin Hood," the one dominant figure is Cora Tracy, a true soprano, with the rare thing, a range of two and one half octaves, each note of an equal force and value. She was secured by Mr. de Koven from the Continuity Opera Company, New York, and her performance of Maid Marian is ideal. Cora Tracy will be heard as Maid Marian. Miss Tracy possesses a voice of strength and beauty and receives an ovation for her "Oh Promise Me," George Frothingham, the original Robin Hood of the famous Bostonians has been engaged to recreate his favorite part, and he has played it upward of 2,000 times.

Others in the cast are Harold Blake, as Robin, George Shields as the Archers, James Stevens as Little John, Lawrence Carman as Ananias, Willie Salinger as the Duke, Duke Darden, Phil Branson as the wily sheriff of Nottingham and Sol Selman as Guy of Glynor, his confederate and dupe. The scenery, which is very elaborate shows the market place at Nottingham, the edge of Sherwood Forest, with a stream flowing across the stage and the court yard of the sheriff's palace. The forest scene with 50 characters dressed in Lincoln green and brown leather jodels never fails of a round of applause. There is a happy, out-of-doors atmosphere about "Robin Hood" that seems to take us back to our childhood days.

ARMY PAYMASTER'S CLERK FLED WITH $4300

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 3.—Information was obtained Saturday from Fort Ethan Allen that John A. Howard, paymaster's clerk with the 2d cavalry, had fled with a little more than $4300 of army funds. The robbery was accomplished by means of forgery and the theft was not discovered until Howard had been gone 10 days. Howard had been paymaster's clerk for two years and as he was thought to be a man of good habits considerable confidence was reposed in him. It was customary to send him to the Howard National Bank in Burlington for the money with which troops were paid off, and this facilitated matters when it came to the robbery.

On Dec. 18 Lieut. W. D. Sumner, the quartermaster, was relieved by Capt. Wilson G. Heaton and in turning over the accounts it was discovered that they did not balance. Howard's attention was called to this but he said that the mistake could easily be found. He had previously asked for a 10-day furlough and was due to leave on that day. He accordingly went to Burlington and there forged Lieut. Sumner's name on a check drawn for $3500 on the government funds. That night he gave a reception and announced that he was about to marry a notorious woman in Burlington, known as "Blondie," and who gave her name as Violet Lovejoy. Champagne was drunk in large quantities and no expense was spared. In the morning all of the woman's household goods were given away and the couple left for parts unknown.

The robbery was learned when Washington notified Sumner he had overdrawn his account. Further investigation showed that $7.00 in cash had been taken from the post.

FARMER HAS HARD TIME TO GET BY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—A thorough investigation of the conditions governing the farming industry in the United States made by the Department of Agriculture shows that the average farm owner receives for his year's work very little more than he would obtain if he hired his services out to some other employer of farm help. The investigation has shown that although the farmer is in business for himself he gets little or no money reward for the skill and experience which he employs in the management of his farm and for the work that he does himself.

When a farm is nearly, if not quite, self-sustaining, say agricultural experts, when it supplies the family that lives upon it with most of the necessities of life, a large money income is not necessary to prosperity. A greater sum derived from a farm which yields nothing for home consumption may leave the occupants much worse off.

Under the title of Farmers' Bulletin 655, "What the Farm Contributes Directly to the Farmer's Living," the Department of Agriculture is about to publish the results of a survey of conditions on a large number of farms in the ten states of North Carolina, Georgia, Texas, Kansas, Iowa, Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and Vermont. The farms selected for study, though possibly a little more prosperous than the average, were fairly representative of their sections, which, it will be noted, included three corn and cotton areas, two states in the corn and wheat belt, two regions where general farming was carried on and three different dairy districts. The average value of the chief necessities of life—food, fuel, oil and shelter—used each year by the farm family the investigators found to be $406.08. Of these necessities, estimated in money the portion contributed directly by the farm was $521.17, leaving $175.91 to be purchased with the cash obtained from the sale of products. In considering these figures it must be remembered that if the farmer had been compelled to pay city prices for his home grown necessities this $421.17 would have represented much less comfort.

Of the food consumed 63 per cent was furnished by the farm. This proportion varied greatly in the different sections, but was greatest in the locality studied in North Carolina, where the farms supplied 82.3 per cent of the food consumed, while the average in the New York locality was only 50.4. In view of the present economic crisis in the south this fact is regarded as of particular significance, since it demonstrates the extent to which, with a proper system of agriculture, southern farms can be made self-sustaining. Concentration upon one cash crop, cotton, has proved disastrous, and agricultural authorities are now trying in every way to induce the people to adopt a system which will lead to conditions similar to those now prevailing in this particular area of North Carolina.

The averages obtained as the result of this investigation are not, of course, to be taken as mathematically exact for the entire country. In the opinion of agricultural experts, however, they point with convincing emphasis to the possibilities of comfort and prosperity that may be realized by a fuller utilization of all the farm's resources. Cash crops are not the sole, and on the average they are not even the chief, source of real income. It is really what the farm furnishes directly to the farmer that enables him to support his family. To increase the quantity and quality of this direct supply is one great object of farm management studies.

AMERICA'S PURSE HAS OPENED WIDE TO PEOPLE OF WARRING NATIONS.

Reports from some 40 correspondents of The New York World in as many cities and towns throughout the country indicate that within a period of four months $20,000,000 has been raised in the United States and its possessions for relief purposes in war-torn Europe.

Included in this total are: Nearly $3,000,000 in cash and food for Belgian relief; approximately $3,500,000 for German needs; approximately $100,000 for the suffering Jews; $50,000 of Dollar Christmas Fund; $1,250,000 for Red Cross work; $200,000 for the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris; about $250,000 raised by French societies, including $500,000 to the fund for relief of women and children in France; $200,000 raised by various British committees, including the Prince of Wales Fund.

The remainder is made up of the Christmas Ship, contributions of missionary bodies of every denomination, funds collected by newspapers and forwarded direct to France or Belgium; the combined totals of nearly a dozen minor relief bodies and of as many fraternal associations. The grand total given does not include totals of reports of sums aggregating approximately $300,000 withdrawn from savings banks in the west and sent by Austrians, Germans, Hungarians, Slovaks and Servians to relatives at home, whose breadwinners are at the front.

A FINE PRODUCTION

The Manchester Union has the following to say of the production of Robin Hood which appears at the Portsmouth Theatre next Wednesday evening:

The old favorite, Reginald de Koven's and Harry D. Smith's comic opera, "Robin Hood," never had a better presentation than that given at the New York afternoon and evening Friday by the de Koven Opera company. Its wealth of tuneful music and freedom from the vaudeville which

SENATE ADOPTS ALIEN BILL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—Drastic restrictions upon the immigration of aliens is provided for in the Burnett Immigration bill, which the Senate adopted late Saturday afternoon by a vote of 48 to 17.

The literacy test, which aroused the bitterest opposition in both houses and which was adopted in the Senate last Thursday in the same form as it passed the House, will not be subject to change in conference. Should President Wilson disapprove the bill because of this paragraph the Senate will pass it easily over his signature. It is doubtful if the House will do so. The situation would then remain as it was after President Taft vetoed the bill. The Senate overrode the veto, but the House failed.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, obtained the adoption of his amendment waiving the provisions of the bill in the case of Belgian immigrants who should seek homes in the United States.

Even the prohibition against illiterates coming in is waived in the case of Belgians who shall convince the Commissioner of Immigration that they intend to take up farms and engage in agriculture and become citizens of this country.

The head tax on immigrants was changed by the Senate to $6 where it was $5 in the House bill. An immigrant father coming in with his wife and children will pay only $4.

After an interesting fight the Senate voted to exclude "black persons of African descent," also persons charged with "constitutional psychopathic inferiority," and others suffering from chronic alcoholism.

The law against white slavers was strengthened by the Senate to exclude "persons who, directly or indirectly, procure aliens for immoral purposes." To keep out undesirable it is also provided that those "legally charged with felony," shall not be admitted. This language is substituted for those convicted of felony.

As an additional safeguard against the importation of contract labor the provision of the present law is broadened to include mental as well as manual labor. Furthermore a reward of $1000 is offered for informers against persons admitted in violation of this provision.

Senator O'Gorman, of New York, denounced this provision as opening the door to the grossest kind of blackmail. Senator Moses E. Clapp, of Minnesota, and Senator Mark Smith, of Arizona, earnestly pleaded against it, saying it would lead to intolerable conditions.

Senator Root, who made an eloquent plea for the Lodge amendment, declared that it would not violate any treaty obligation. He pictured the Belgians as a people without a country and without a protecting government who needed asylum.

SAYS IT LOOKS GOOD TO HIM

E. Percy Stoddard Talks on Fight for State Treasurer.

E. Percy Stoddard is still in the fight for state treasurer and believes that he has a good chance of replacing a Democrat in that position at Concord. During a conversation with a Herald man today he appeared to be pleased with the campaign he has made up to today, and stated that if the better delegation would stand by him, he had nothing to fear. He further said: "I would appreciate it very much if Portsmouth people would go to Concord tomorrow and give me their support. Portsmouth has not had a state officer of any consequence for nearly sixty years and it is time that we were represented in state affairs. I guarantee that if I am elected state treasurer that I will fill the position with the highest integrity, and the state, county and city will have no regrets for electing me to that high office."

"It is true that I was always born in Portsmouth, and my ancestors have lived here in this state for nearly three hundred years. In politics I have always been a Republican, and have worked hard for the party's success, yet I always kept in mind the best welfare of the people. Nearly everyone who gets in politics has some enemies, (so-called) and I presume I have too. I have always assisted Portsmouth people in state affairs and I hope they will reciprocate at this time."

"My friends tell me 'up the state,' that if I am to have the backing of my city, I will be elected state treasurer. I hear many gratifying reports throughout the state in favor of my candidacy, and I confidently expect to win out."

THE HERALD HEARS

That not a few lovers of horse racing would like to see Jack Keller matched against some of the fast ones.

That the Seamen's Home on State street has proved to be a great thing for the sailors since its establishment. That very few people realize the good it has done and what a place of this kind means to Portsmouth.

That the ladies who have handled the business of the Home since it was opened certainly deserve great credit.

That a little more interest on the part of some of our male residents would make it easier for the ladies, and otherwise help the management of the Home.

That it will not be long before large quarters will be necessary.

That the Portsmouth Hospital has nearly a full house.

That 1915 should not forget in a hurry the welcome it got in Portsmouth.

That tourists on the water wagon are not so crowded today.

That the carpenters of Lynn are out for an increase of wages.

That they want 5 cents more per hour for journeymen and foremen, making 55 cents for journeymen and 65 cents for bosses.

That the new schedule goes into effect April 1.

That the man who was handed a nice box of cigars for Christmas should not be expected among the throng who cut out smoking as one of the New Year resolutions.

That it is "safety first" when a man recognizes the danger signal given in a kick by his wife under the table when company are seated at the festive board.

That the twenty cities in the state of Maine show an increase in valuation during 1914 amounting to $3,894,943.

That the new city council will not be bothered with the appointment to one position, that of a keeper to the public bath house.

That the few grumblers who said that Portsmouth could not pull off a New Year's celebration will recover.

That railroad ticket agents are having all they can fly at digging out the new rates.

That the Manchester fire department responded to 578 alarms during the year, and the losses exceeded those of all previous years by thousands of dollars.

That the crew of Engine 4 are to have a choice spread tonight.

That the men of Steamer 2 also gather around the festive board.
